Wooden sleepers with long useful life

Environmentally friendly sleepers

DECCO is a Mexican producer of wooden sleepers. Wood's physical and mechanical properties make it the ideal material to manufacture sleepers because it has the necessary strength and toughness to withstand heavy loads and also has the flexibility that allows it to absorb vibration, avoiding crumbling or breaking. Treating with DOT + creosote protects the sleepers against fungi and insects, extending its useful life up to 40 years. Wood is the "greenest" and most environmentally friendly material for sleeper production, it is a renewable natural resource. A tree grows for many years capturing carbon dioxide and sending oxygen into the atmosphere before it is transformed into a sleeper. DECCO is the leading supplier of wooden sleepers in Latin America.
